

If...

If time stopped,
how long would it be
before it started again?

If the thoughts you have
are your thoughts,
why can't you choose them or stop them?

If we knew everything,
how would we know?

If everything were twice as big...
- oh it is.

If space is curved,
is the earth really flat?

If only... there were no wishful thinking...

If everything sooner or later changes into something else, what's it all made of?

If everything were just our imagination...
- oh it is.

If the future is only a thought,
and the future becomes the present,
the present must be a thought.
What if we all stopped thinking?

If you are in your dreams
- where are they?

If we don't live in a blame-free world,
whose fault is that?

If I dropped all my doubts about Dharma,
I'd be enlightened.
Or would I?

If hypothetical situations don't exist...
